left in the field reduces the ultimate crop yield in proportion to the moisture that it permits to escape. Scientific use of the disk harrow slices the clods and leaves the surface a finely pulverized mulch. Such a seed bed conserves the sub-soil moisture and provides an ideal repository for the seed.

Every feature of construction that makes for good work and easy operation will be found on the International, McCormick and Deering Disk Harrows.

A RICH MAN'S DUTY AND A POOR MAN'S PRAYER--- VOTE FOR WATER BONDS

The Saturday bond election may well be referred to as the rich man's duty and the poor man's prayer. By rich man, of course, is meant the property owner and by poor man is meant the man who has no property, and, therefore, no vote on the bond issue. It is ever a sore place with the moneyless man that the property owner dictates practically everything in the way of public improvement requiring bond issue. There is some merit to the contention, for because a man has nothing it is no sign he would not like to own property, nor is it a sign he would not vote for the welfare of his fellow man. On the other hand, there seems no way of correcting the situation, for nobody can spend money unless he has it. And for the impecunious to take it away from him by an unrestricted franchise would be little less than anarchy. Wherefore, his attitude at a bond election becomes for the man of wealth a matter of duty as he sees it, and for the non-voter, in most instances, a matter of general apathy.

It is true that most improvements result in added valuations to property and indeed all are intended to do so, except in instances of public necessity, like health, water, sewerage, etc. It is for that reason the man who owns property bares his back to the burden and adjusts the added load, but it is the hope of America that the rich man, through his philanthropy and humanitarian instinct squeeze himself through the eye of the bond election needle.

Proponents of the bonds believe that property owners can make no better investment from a financial view point than to hasten the providing of the new Verde water supply, but if there be a property owner inclined to oppose the bond by reason of the added call upon his pocket book his patriotism and interest in the welfare of his neighbors should in this instance be an overpowering argument. The provision of this new water supply is a public necessity and it can be had only by the acquiescence of those who pay the taxes.

But the tax burden, if one will stop to think, is not so appalling. The desperately rich, of whom we stand in awe, are rather few and far between.

The holdings of the average home owner in the city are only about $4,000, and his added water burden will only be between three and four dollars annually. It ought to be worth that much to the average taxpayer to have good pure water for his own private consumption. But again, one-half of the taxpayers fall below the average, and, therefore, their annual added cost dribbles down from a three dollar bill to a two bit piece. If the tax-payer is not moved by the selfish outcome in his own interest, this is one time when he should heed the prayer of the non-tax-payer, who is relatively as much in need of the good water system but helpless to provide it for himself. It is one time he must eat from the taxpayer's hand.

This brings to the front another angle of vision, the duties of the non-taxpayer in Saturday's election. He may not be able to vote, but nearly every respectable worth-while-citizen has some influence with some one who is a voting taxpayer, and to him he should address his personal prayer with all the fervency of one who asks a favor, believes he is entitled to it, and that it will be granted. In other words, if one cannot through legal restriction, vote for the bonds, he can work for them and lend his influence in their behalf.

COUNTY CLERKS ARE QUITTING $100 JOBS

Some of the more efficient clerks of the county offices have served notice that they sever their connection with the offices on August 1, having succeeded in finding more lucrative employment. How their places are to be filled is now worrying the office heads. Any clerk that can be picked up now at $100 a month, it is said, will hardly be worth the room he will occupy. At the best he will be fitted for his new position only by long training which will take a part of the time of one or more clerks. It is, moreover, believed that one who will accept a $100 clerical position will not make good material for training.

Many of the taxpayers, especially among the business men of the city, have taken an interest in the matter and have written to the heads of the departments urging an increase of the salary of the clerks. These letters will be presented to the board of supervisors. It is stated in them that it has become absolutely impossible for one to live on the salary allowed by the
